Beef, Veal and Lamb Report

Beef, Veal & Lamb Beef production last week was 8.3% less than the same week a year ago but the reduction was due in a large part to inclement weather. Beef output is anticipated to remain below 2013 levels in the coming months. The USDA is forecasting winter beef production to be down 5.5% versus last year. This should be relatively supportive of the beef markets. Beef demand is expected to be spotty due to less expensive pork and chicken. Thus, notable volatility is likely for the beef markets. The beef end cut markets have soared to record highs but a short term top may be near. Last year the 116 choice chuck market declined 6% during the next three weeks. Price USDA, FOB per pound.

Dairy Report

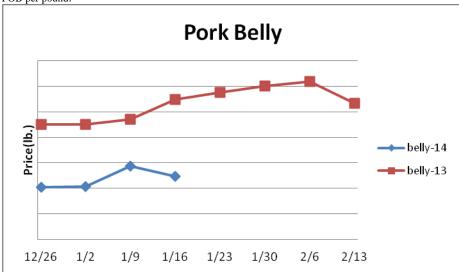

Dairy U.S. cheese exports during November were 54% bigger than the prior year and a record. 2013 U.S. cheese exports through the month accounted for 6.2% of domestic cheese production which is also a record high. However, recent cheese price increases have caused the premium in the international cheese markets to decline to levels which should discourage trade. Thus, the upside in the domestic cheese markets from here in the near term may be minimal. November butter exports were up 214% versus 2012. The butter market may remain firm into the next month. Pork Report

Pork- Pork output last week was 5.2% less than the same week a year ago due mostly to challenging weather. Hog supplies are adequate with weights well above year ago levels which points to solid pork production during the next few weeks. The USDA is forecasting Q1 pork output to be 1.9% larger than the previous year. Many of the pork markets could achieve seasonal bottoms soon. Last year ham prices rose 10% during the next two weeks. Prices USDA, FOB per pound.

Poultry Report

Poultry- - Chicken output for the week ending January 4th was 2.3% less than the prior year however this is not an indication of the longer trend. Chicken production for the last several months has been tracking 3% plus above the previous year levels. Solid chicken output gains are projected to persist. The USDA's latest forecast has winter chicken production 3.1% higher than 2013. Chicken exports during November were 1.6% bigger than the previous year. Although chicken export demand should remain solid, chicken leg quarter prices are anticipated to remain below year ago levels this winter due better domestic production. The wing markets are seasonally firming. Typically the chicken wing markets peak for the year in the next few weeks. Chicken wing prices should also remain below 2013 levels. Prices USDA, FOB per pound except when noted.

SeafoodU.S. shrimp imports in November were 13.4% smaller than the previous year due in part to continued challenges with Thailand's shrimp production. U.S. shrimp imports from the country during the month were down 33% versus the prior year but were the second best for any month since January 2012. The shrimp markets may remain inflated this winter. Prices for fresh product, unless noted, per pound from Fisheries Market News.

Produce- The potato markets continue to trend well above the prior year levels due to the 3.9% smaller harvest this past fall. Modestly higher potato prices are anticipated in the coming months. The five year average move for the 70 count Idaho potato market is up 24.8% during the next eight weeks. The lettuce markets remain relatively depressed due to ample supplies. Iceberg lettuce shipments last week rose 5% from the previous week and were 4.3% more than the same week a year ago. Still, the downside price risk in the lettuce markets from here is likely nominal. Prices USDA FOB shipping point unless noted (terminal).
